

Hilary Newiss

Hilary Newiss is a lawyer and former partner in Denton Hall solicitors, now Dentons. She specialised in intellectual property law and, since retiring from full time legal practice, has served on several public bodies in the science, innovation, health, and ethics fields.

She is currently a Chair of National Voices (an umbrella group of 160 Health and Social Care charities), on the Accelerated Access Collaborative, and a Director of the Cell and Gene Catapult UK Ltd. Previously, Hilary was a Non-Executive Director of the Francis Crick Institute (the largest biomedical research institute in the UK) and a trustee of Charleston, the artists house museum in Sussex.
