By accessing the Natural History Museum Library and Archives collections and resources, Visitors agree to abide by the terms and conditions detailed in this document.

Please note: nothing in this document should be construed as legal advice.

Visitors are reminded that:

- The privileges granted under this permit are provided at the discretion of the Natural History Museum Library and Archives and may be suspended or withdrawn at any time. Furthermore, they are subject to the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, The Copyright and Rights in Performances (Research, Education, Libraries and Archives) Regulations 2014, the Copyright and Rights in Databases Regulations 1997, The Copyright and Related Rights Regulations 1996 and 2003, and any subsequent amendments and other relevant legislation. Full texts of the above can be found at www.legislation.gov.uk.

- Intellectual Property laws apply to electronic resources as well as print Items.

- It is an infringement of copyright for a person who without the licence of the copyright owner does, or authorises another to do, any of the acts restricted by the copyright with the whole or a substantial part of a work, subject to the provisions of Chapter III of the Copyright Designs and Patents Act 1988 (acts permitted in relation to copyright works), and (b) the provisions of Chapter VII (provisions with respect to copyright licensing).

Electronic resources

- When using Library and Archives facilities to access websites and other online resources such as databases or e-journals to which the Library subscribes, Visitors are obliged to abide by the any relevant terms or conditions of use for such resources and ensure their use is, in all cases, lawful.

- Databases and e-journals may not be used for commercial research.

- Failure to abide by the terms of use of any database, e-journal, website or other electronic resource may result in loss of access to electronic resources.
Copying by visitors

Visitors are permitted to make copies of Items in the Library and Archives collections by using the photocopying /scanning facilities located in the Reading Room, or by use of their own photographic equipment, subject to the following restrictions:

Visitors may not photograph the Library and Archives Reading Room or other restricted areas, Staff or other Visitors.

For Items In Copyright

Visitors wishing to copy Items restricted by copyright may only do so in the following circumstances:

- Where the copying does not constitute infringement of copyright due to the copying not being of the whole or a substantial part of a work.

- Where the copying falls under the provisions of Chapter III of the Copyright Designs and Patents Act 1988 (acts permitted in relation to copyright works). These provisions allow, for example, fair-dealing with work for the purposes research for a non-commercial purpose. Further guidance on what is permitted under these provisions is available from the Intellectual Property Office www.gov.uk/exceptions-to-copyright and CILIP www.cilip.org.uk/sites/default/files/documents/Copying%20Guidance%20Jan%202015.pdf.

For Items Out Of Copyright

Visitors are permitted to exceed the above limitations; however copying limits remain at the discretion of the Librarian or Archivist.

Using copies of Library and Archives items

- Any publication right (as provided by the Copyright and Related Rights Regulations 1996 SI 1996/2967) or any analogous right or rights in any part of the world, arising from a Visitor’s use of Library and Archives Items and/or copies of Library or Archives Items, are hereby assigned absolutely for the full term to the Trustees of the Natural History Museum, London.

- Any use of Library and Archives Items, and/or of copies of Library or Archives Items, by Visitors must be lawful and be accompanied by the following acknowledgement: Courtesy of the Trustees of the Natural History Museum, London.

Declaration

By using our services you are deemed to have accepted these Terms and Conditions.